

Katerina Sokou

Katerina Sokou is International Financial News Editor at Kathimerini Athens daily newspaper, for which she is reporting on the economic crisis, the response of the international community and the actions of credit rating agencies.

Before that, and for ten years, she followed developments in the European Union, as well as domestic and international financial news, for To Vima newspaper. Among others, she has covered the Greek presidency of the European Council, followed the drafting of the European Constitution, covered the plenary sessions of the European Parliament and interviewed prominent figures of the European Union.

She has a First Class Honours Degree in History from the University of Ioannina and an MA in International Political Economy from the University of Warwick, UK. She was an Erasmus scholar at King's College London, and has also taken courses in European Politics and Economics at the London School of Economics and the American University of Athens.

She is a member of the Journalists' Union of Athens Daily Newspapers and the Association of European Journalists, as well as an Alumna of the US State Dept. "Young European Leaders" Project.