

Angus Lapsley

Angus Lapsley joined the UK civil service in 1991, working in the Department of Health and then the UK Representation to the EU, before becoming Private Secretary (Home Affairs) to the Prime Minister in 1996.

In 1999 he joined the Foreign Office, leading the EU Institutions Unit during the negotiations of the Nice Treaty. Posted to Paris between 2001 and 2005, he followed foreign and security policy issues. From 2006 to 2006 he was Deputy Balkans Co-ordinator in the FCO, before taking up his current post as Counsellor and head of the CFSP, CSDP and enlargement team at the UK Representation to the EU .