

Scientific coordinator: Dr Evangelia Psychogiopoulou, Lawyer and Research fellow, Hellenic Foundation for European and Foreign Policy, Greece
E-mail: epsychogiopoulou@eliamep.gr

Evangelia Psychogiopoulou is a lawyer and research fellow at the Hellenic Foundation for European and Foreign Policy (ELIAMEP, Athens, Greece). A graduate from the Faculty of Law of the Kapodistrian University of Athens, she holds a DEA in EU Law from Paris I University (Paris, France), a Master of Research in Law and a PhD in Law from the European University Institute (Florence, Italy). Her main areas of research are EU cultural and media policies and human rights protection. She has held research and management positions at the Academy of European Law (Florence, Italy), the Directorate General Education and Culture (Unit C1-Culture and Intercultural Dialogue) of the European Commission and UNESCO (Division of cultural expressions and creative industries). From November 2008 to June 2009, she coordinated a study that was commissioned by the European Parliament on ‘Collecting societies and cultural diversity in the music sector’. She is presently the coordinator of an FP7 European research project “European media policies revisited: Valuing and reclaiming free and independent media in contemporary democratic systems” (MEDIADDEM, www.mediadem.eliamep.gr). Her recent publications include ‘The integration of cultural considerations in EU law and policies’ (Martinus Nijhoff Publishers, 2008) and ‘The European Court of Human Rights and the rights of marginalised individuals and minorities in national context’ (Martinus Nijhoff Publishers, 2010), co-edited with Dr. Dia Anagnostou.

Experts

Christine Altemark, Research assistant, Institute for Information, Telecommunication and Media Law (ITM), University of Münster, Germany
E-mail: ch.altemark@uni-muenster.de

Christine Altemark is a research assistant at the Institute for Information, Telecommunication and Media Law (ITM) of the University of Münster (Germany). Her research interests pertain to copyright law and data protection. In 2009, she participated in the study ‘Collecting societies and cultural diversity in the music sector’, which was commissioned by the European Parliament and was coordinated by Evangelia Psychogiopoulou (<http://www.eliamep.gr/en/collecting-societies-and-cultural-diversity-in-the-music-sector/>).

Federica Casarosa, Jean Monnet fellow, Robert Schuman Center for Advanced Studies, Italy
E-mail: federica.casarosa@eui.eu

Federica Casarosa is a Jean Monnet Fellow at the Robert Schuman Center for Advanced Studies in Florence (Italy). She majored in private comparative law at the University of Pisa. In 2003, she obtained a Master of Research in Law from the European University Institute. In 2008, she successfully defended her PhD thesis on the role of information in online contracting, analysing, in particular, the nature and level of protection provided to consumers. Her research interests focus on child protection in the media sector.

Violaine Dehin, Registered lawyer with the Brussels bar, Belgium
E-mail: viodehin@yahoo.fr

Violaine Dehin studied law at the University of Namur and Louvain-la-Neuve in Belgium. She holds a Master in European legal studies from the College of Europe (Bruges, Belgium). She is registered as a lawyer with the Brussels bar and was an associate of the European & Competition department of the Ashurst law firm for 5 years. In 2009, she cooperated with ELIAMEP for the study 'Collecting societies and cultural diversity in the music sector' (<http://www.eliamep.gr/en/collecting-societies-and-cultural-diversity-in-the-music-sector/>).

Susana de la Sierra, Professor, University of Castilla-La Mancha, Spain
E-mail: susana.sierra@uclm.es

Susana de la Sierra is Professor of Administrative and European Union law at the University of Castilla-La Mancha (Toledo, Spain). She has an LL.M degree from the University of Bayreuth (Germany) and a PhD from the European University Institute (Florence, Italy). She has been Visiting Professor at various Universities, including Oxford and Columbia University, and has conducted intensive research on law, culture and the media.

Sophie De Vinck, Researcher, Interdisciplinary Institute for Broadband Technology, Studies on Media, Information and Telecommunication (IBBT-SMIT), Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium
E-mail: sdevinck@vub.ac.be

Sophie De Vinck joined IBBT-SMIT in October 2005 as a PhD student of the Flemish Fund for Scientific Research. Her research focuses on the cultural, economic and innovative features of European-level cinema support policies, with an emphasis on current digitalisation-related challenges. Sophie De Vinck graduated in 2004 at the department of Communication Studies of VUB with a thesis on the French photojournalistic sector and the challenges it faces in times of globalisation and digitalisation. Subsequently, she studied European Politics at the Institute of European Studies (IES). She graduated in 2005 with a dissertation on the role that the EU has played in relation to the adoption of the UNESCO Convention on the protection and promotion of the diversity of cultural expressions.

Pierre-François Docquir, Post-doctoral researcher, Perelman Centre for Legal Philosophy, Université Libre de Bruxelles, Belgium
E-mail: pierre-francois.docquir@ulb.ac.be

Pierre-François Docquir is post-doctoral researcher at the Perelman Centre for Legal Philosophy of the Université Libre de Bruxelles (ULB), where he also teaches methodology of law and human rights law. He received his law degree cum laude from the Université Catholique de Louvain in 1997, and his PhD in law from ULB in January 2009. He previously worked as an attorney of the Brussels' bar and currently serves as Vice-President at the Belgian Conseil supérieur de l'audiovisuel. He is a member of the editorial board of 'Revue du droit des technologies de l'information' and runs a blog dedicated to freedom of expression (<http://www.opiniondissidente.org>). His main areas of interest cover freedom of speech, media regulation, cyber law and democratic internet regulation.

Karen Donders, Researcher, Interdisciplinary Institute for Broadband Technology, Studies on Media, Information and Telecommunication (IBBT-SMIT), Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium

E-mail: karen.donders@vub.ac.be

Karen Donders joined IBBT-SMIT as a researcher on e-government and e-culture in the European Union in 2005. In 2006, she became a researcher at the Institute of European Studies for the project 'Towards i2010: Bargaining for an equitable information society - Analysis of the dialectics between the EU and the WTO as regards state aid in the audiovisual and telecommunications sector'. She has recently obtained her PhD degree. Her research analyzes the breadth and impact of EU intervention on EU Member States' state aid policies, in particular, as regards public service broadcasting.

Mihály Gálik, Professor, Department of Media, Marketing Communications and Tele-communications, Hungary

E-mail: galik@uni-corvinus.hu

Mihály Gálik (PhD in Economics) is Professor at Corvinus University (Budapest, Hungary). Since 2005, he is also head of the Department of Media, Marketing Communications and Tele-communications. From 1990 to 1992, he was managing director at the Hungarian Radio (1990-1992) and for the period 1976-1990, senior editor of the Economic Programme Department. During the last twenty years, he has coordinated numerous research projects on the Hungarian media and has participated in several international media research projects.

Lesley Hitchens, Professor, Faculty of Law, University of Technology, Australia

E-mail: lesley.hitchens@uts.edu.au

Lesley Hitchens is Professor and Associate Dean (Research) in the Faculty of Law, University of Technology Sydney (UTS, Australia). She joined UTS in January 2008 after having been an academic at universities in Australia and the UK. Prior to taking up an academic position, she practised as a commercial lawyer in Sydney and London. Her research in communications regulation has focused on media ownership and control and content regulation. Much of her work has a comparative focus involving the UK (and the EU), the US and Australia.

Thomas Hoeren, Director, Institute for Information, Telecommunication and Media Law, University of Münster, Germany

E-mail: hoeren@uni-muenster.de

Thomas Hoeren is Professor at the University of Münster and Director of the Institute for Information, Telecommunication and Media Law (ITM, Germany). After studying theology, philosophy and law in Tübingen, London and Münster (1980-1987), he received a doctoral degree (1988) and a postdoctoral lecture qualification (Habilitation, 1994) in law. Before joining the University of Münster and founding the ITM in 1997, he was Professor in Düsseldorf (Germany). Since 1996, he has been a judge at the Higher Regional Court (panel for intellectual property and competition law) in Düsseldorf. He is one of the leading experts in information law and he is involved in various international research projects in the field, such as 'IPR-Helpdesk', 'RESPECT' and 'ECLIP'.

Petros Iosifidis, Reader, City University London, UK

E-mail: p.iosifidis@city.ac.uk

Petros Iosifidis obtained his first degree in sociology from Panteion University of Athens and completed his MA and PhD in media policy at City University and University of Westminster (UK). He is currently Reader in Media Policy at City University London. He is the author of three books and has published extensively in refereed journals and presented in various conferences. He has led Research Council-funded projects and acted as national expert in various EU projects.

Harri Kalimo, Senior Research fellow, Faculty of Law and Faculty of Economic, Political and Social Sciences, Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium

E-mail: harri.kalimo@vub.ac.be

Harri Kalimo is a lawyer (LL.D., LL.M.) and an economist [M.Sc. (Econ. & BA)]. He works as a senior research fellow at the Institute for European Studies, specialising in EU internal market issues. He co-heads two research clusters: one on the information society, and the other on the environment. He is a professor (ZAP) at the Faculty of Law and the Faculty of Economic, Political and Social Sciences of Vrije Universiteit Brussel. He is also a visiting fellow at Yale University and an Associate Professor at the Turku School of Economics in Finland. His present research projects concern the EU digital single market, civil society participation and environmental and constitutional issues.

Robin Kerremans, Researcher, Interdisciplinary Centre for Law & Information Communication Technology (ICRI), Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium

E-mail: robin.kerremans@law.kuleuven.be

Robin Kerremans obtained his law degree (cum laude) from the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven (K.U.Leuven) in 2005. For the period 2005-2006, he worked as a counsellor, teaching contract law to university students. Since 2007, when he joined ICRI, he has been involved in various projects of the Institute for Broadband Technology dealing with digital registration, archiving and the dissemination of copyright protected material. He has also participated in several studies commissioned by the Flemish government and other stakeholders of the media sector, and has formed part of the team which carried out the 'Independent study on indicators for media pluralism – Towards a risk-based approach' for the European Commission (Directorate General Information Society and Media). His areas of expertise pertain to copyright and media law.

Beata Klimkiewicz, Assistant Professor, Institute of Journalism and Social Communication, Jagiellonian University, Poland

E-mail: beatakl@hotmail.com

Beata Klimkiewicz is Assistant Professor at the Institute of Journalism and Social Communication, of the Jagiellonian University (Cracow, Poland). She received her PhD from the Institute of Political Sciences (Jagiellonian University, 2000). She was awarded with numerous fellowships at Oxford University, Columbia University, the Robert Schuman Centre for Advanced Studies, the European University Institute, the Open Society Institute and the Netherlands Institute for Advanced Study in the Humanities and Social Sciences. Beata Klimkiewicz has provided expertise for the European Commission, the European Union Agency for Fundamental Rights, the European Parliament, the Council of Europe and the OSCE. She has also cooperated with the Open Society Institute in Budapest, the Media Diversity Institute in London, and the Peace Institute in Ljubljana. Since 2006, she has been a member of the Steering Committee of COST Action A30 'East of West: Setting a new Central and Eastern European media research agenda'.

Maria Kontochristou, Lecturer, Hellenic Open University, Greece
E-mail: mariakontochristou@gmail.com

Maria Kontochristou (PhD LSE; MA Warwick, BSc UOA) lectures at the Greek Open University. She has collaborated with leading research institutes and has worked as a consultant for many years. She has directed the Departments of Promotion and Communication and International Collaborations of the Hellenic Culture Organisation of the Greek Ministry of Culture. Her current research interests involve EU media and communication policy, audiovisual industries, media and identity construction, cultural diversity and foreign relations, EU and cultural diplomacy, cultural policy making and management.

Eva Lievens, Researcher, Interdisciplinary Centre for Law & Information Communication Technology (ICRI), Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium
E-mail: eva.lievens@law.kuleuven.be

Eva Lievens has been a member of the Communications Law team of ICRI (K.U.Leuven) since 2003. She obtained her law degree at the University of Ghent in 2002, her Masters degree in Transnational Communications and Global Media at Goldsmiths College, London in 2003, and her PhD, entitled 'Regulatory instruments for content regulation in digital media - A prospective study on the protection of minors against harmful content', in 2009. She is involved in media law-related research regarding the legal challenges posed by new communication phenomena, such as the regulation of audiovisual media services, user-generated content, virtual networks and social networks. She is a member of the Advisory Committee of the BINSI project (EU Safer Internet Plus Programme), the Advisory Committee for Telecommunications ('Raadgevend Comité voor de Telecommunicatie') and the Belgian Film Evaluation Committee ('Commissie Filmkeuring'). She has also been a member of various working groups advising the Federal and Flemish government.

Jan Loisen, Researcher, Interdisciplinary Institute for Broadband Technology, Studies on Media, Information and Telecommunication (IBBT-SMIT), Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium
E-mail: jan.loisen@vub.ac.be

Jan Loisen is a researcher for IBBT-SMIT. In 2009, he obtained his PhD in communication sciences with a thesis that developed theoretical and empirical analysis of the WTO's policy in audiovisual services. Since October 2008, he has been working for the Flemish Centre for International Policy, a policy supporting research centre for the Flemish Department of Foreign Policy. He is also responsible for a research project on cultural diversity and subsidiarity, which focuses on audiovisual policy developments stemming from the WTO, UNESCO and bilateral trade agreements.

Caroline Pauwels, Professor, Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium
E-mail: caroline.pauwels@vub.ac.be

Caroline Pauwels, Professor at Vrije Universiteit Brussel, is Director of the Interdisciplinary Institute for Broadband Technology, Studies on Media, Information and Telecommunication (IBBT-SMIT) since 2000. She lectures national and European communication policy. Her main areas of interest are European audiovisual policy-making, entertainment economy and convergence, and concentration issues in the media industries. In 1998, she was appointed to the Flemish Media Council (i.e. an advisory committee to the Minister of Media). She has also been a member of the Flemish Audiovisual Fund. In 2007, she became a member of the Executive Board of the Institute for European Studies, and became a member of the Board of Directors of the Flemish public broadcaster VRT in 2008.

Zrinjka Peruško, Associate Professor, Department of Journalism, University of Zagreb, Croatia
E-mail: zrinjka.perusko@fpzg.hr

Zrinjka Peruško is an Associate Professor of media studies at the Department of Journalism, and founder and Chair of the Centre for Media and Communication Research of the Faculty of Political Science of the University of Zagreb (Croatia). She holds a PhD (1998) and B.A. (1985) in sociology and an MA (1990) in communication studies from the University of Zagreb. She was a Fulbright Visiting Professor at the Department for Communication and Culture, Indiana University, (Bloomington, USA, 2001-2002), and a research fellow at the Center for European Social Research, Department of Sociology, University College Cork (National University of Ireland, 1994). She has led and participated in a number of international research projects, including COST Action A30 'East of West: Setting a new Central and Eastern European media research agenda' (2006-2009). In 2008 and 2009 she led the first independent study implementing the UNESCO media development indicators.

Robert Picard, Professor, Jönköping International Business School, Jönköping University, Sweden
E-mail: robert.picard@jibs.hj.se

Robert Picard is Professor of Media Economics and Director of the Media Management and Transformation Centre at Jönköping International Business School, Jönköping University, Sweden. He is editor of the 'Journal of Media Business Studies' and the author of 23 books. He has been a fellow at Harvard University and the University of Oxford, and has carried out assignments for the European Commission, UNESCO and the World Intellectual Property Organisation.

George Pleios, Associate Professor, Department of Communication and Mass Media, University of Athens, Greece
E-mail: gplios@media.uoa.gr

George Pleios (PhD in Sociology of Culture and Mass Media) is Associate Professor and Director of the Laboratory for Social Research in Mass Media at the Department of Communication and Mass Media of the University of Athens. He is the author of 3 books and the editor of 4 books. He has published more than 30 articles in Greek and foreign reviews and edited various volumes. In addition, he has been the head investigator in more than 17 research projects. His research interests focus on the relationships between mass media and society.

Jaka Primorac, Research fellow at the Department for Culture and Communication of the Institute for International Relations (IMO), Croatia
E-mail: jaka@irmo.hr

Jaka Primorac is a research fellow at the Department for Culture and Communication of the Institute for International Relations (IMO, Zagreb, Croatia). She earned a degree in sociology from the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Zagreb (2001) and holds an MA in sociology from the Central European University, Budapest and Warsaw (2003). She has worked on the Culturelink Database and as executive assistant at international postgraduate courses at the Inter-University Centre in Dubrovnik. Her main areas of research focus on creative and knowledge industries, cultural workers, cultural transition and cultural production. In 2005, she was the winner of the Cultural Policy Research Award (CPRA), awarded by the European Cultural Foundation and Riksbankens Jubileumsfond.

Evangelia Psychogiopoulou, Lawyer and Research fellow, Hellenic Foundation for European and Foreign Policy, Greece
E-mail: epsychogiopoulou@eliamep.gr

For more information see above.

Tim Raats, Junior researcher, Interdisciplinary Institute for Broadband Technology, Studies on Media, Information and Telecommunication (IBBT-SMIT), Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium
E-mail: tim.raats@vub.ac.be

Tim Raats graduated magna cum laude in communication sciences at Free University of Brussels. During his studies, he was interned for the European producers association 'Eurocinema'. In 2007, he joined IBBT-SMIT as a junior researcher working on the following projects: PoKuMOn (Multimedia dissemination of performing arts) and BOM-Vlaanderen (Storage and dissemination of multimedia data in Flanders). His research interests include e-culture initiatives, television and film production and public broadcasting policy. In 2008, he began preparing a PhD thesis for the Fund for Scientific Research, focusing on the impact of transition processes on the financing, nature and structure of public broadcasting.

Katharine Sarikakis, Senior lecturer, Institute of Communications Studies, University of Leeds, UK

E-mail: k.sarikakis@leeds.ac.uk

Katharine Sarikakis is a senior lecturer in communications policy and the immediate past Director of the Centre for International Communications Research at the University of Leeds. She was the inaugural Gustaf and Anne-Marie Ander Foundation Visiting Professor in Global Media Studies at Karlstad University in 2009. She is the founding co-editor of the International Journal of Media and Cultural Politics, and the author of numerous articles and books on media and cultural policy and international communications. She is the Chair of the Communications Law and Policy Section of the European Communication Research and Education Association (ECREA), honorary research fellow at the Hainan University, China and scientific advisor to the Institute for Applied Communications Research in Cyprus. She has also served as elected Vice-President at the International Association of Media and Communication Researchers, where she is currently serving as an elected member of the International Council.

Eugenia Siapera, Lecturer, Aristotle University, Greece

E-mail: esiapera@jour.auth.gr

Eugenia Siapera received her PhD in social and political sciences by the European University Institute. She holds a BSc (1st class) and an MSc (distinction) awarded by the London School of Economics. She has held various research and teaching positions at the Robert Schuman Centre, the University of Amsterdam, Anglia Ruskin University, and the University of Leicester. She is currently a lecturer at the Aristotle University of Thessaloniki. She has written numerous articles and book chapters and has co-edited two books.

Andrej Školkay, Director, School of Communication and Media, Slovakia

E-mail: askolkay@hotmail.com

Andrej Školkay is the Director of the School of Communication and Media (Bratislava, Slovakia). He also teaches at Comenius University. He has many publications on media and politics, political communication, media ethics and media law, in Slovakia, as well as abroad. For the period 2005-2008, he was a member of the Press Council of Slovakia.

Gavin Sutter, Lecturer, School of Law, Queen Mary, University of London, UK

E-mail: g.sutter@qmul.ac.uk

Gavin Sutter is lecturer on media law and a member of the Institute of Computer & Communications Law (ICCL) at the Centre for Commercial Law Studies, Queen Mary, University of London (UK). He established, managed, and teaches on the LLB and LLM media law courses and several related short courses on the LLM by internet for the ICCL. His key areas of interest include the regulation of content in both traditional and 'new' media. He is vice chair of BILETA (British and Irish Law, Education and Technology Association), and sits on the advisory board of Communications Law journal.

Nada Švob-Đokić, Professor, Culture and Communications Department, Institute for International Relations (IMO), Croatia

E-mail: nada@irmo.hr

Nada Švob-Đokić is scientific adviser (full Professor) at the Culture and Communications Department of IMO (Zagreb, Croatia). She has led a number of research projects, and she is the author of about 300 published books, articles and reviews. She teaches at the Faculty of Philosophy of the University of Zagreb and the Cultural Studies Department of the University of Rijeka. She has been consultant to various UN organisations, the EU institutions and agencies and the Council of Europe on issues concerning technical cooperation, the position of women in development projects, EU cooperation with third countries, regional cultural and scientific cooperation and cultural policies.

Aleksandra Uzelac, Head of the Culture and Communications Department, Institute for International Relations (IMO), Croatia

E-mail: auzelac@irmo.hr

Aleksandra Uzelac is a research associate at IMO (Zagreb, Croatia) and head of the Department for Culture and Communication. She holds a PhD (2003) in information science from the University of Zagreb. Her present research centres on the effects of globalisation and commercialisation on cultural diversity, and the implications of the virtual sphere for cultural diversity. Aleksandra Uzelac has combined her research activities with practical initiatives aimed at developing the Croatian e-culture infrastructure. In 2000, she initiated the 'www.culturenet.hr' project, a Croatian national cultural portal. Since 2003, she has been a member of the Culturelink Network and its editorial board. From 2006 onwards, she has also been a member of the International Steering Committee of the Culturemondo Network.

Peggy Valcke, Director, Interdisciplinary Centre for Law & Information Communication Technology (ICRI), K.U. Leuven, Belgium

E-mail: peggy.valcke@law.kuleuven.be

Peggy Valcke is a full time Research Professor at K.U.Leuven and teaches media law in the postgraduate programme Intellectual Property Law at H.U.Brussel. She is the Director of the Interdisciplinary Centre for Law & ICT (ICRI), which is part of the Interdisciplinary Institute for Broadband Technology (IBBT). She is also member of the General Chamber in the Flemish Media Regulator, as well as a part-time member of the Belgian Competition Council. In 2006, she was Visiting Professor at Central European University in Budapest (Hungary) and lecturer at the Oxford/Annenberg Summer School. She holds a postgraduate diploma on EU competition law from King's College in London (2006). Peggy Valcke has held several expert positions and has advised both public and private actors in Belgium and abroad on policy issues and regulation in the audiovisual and electronic communications sectors. She is a former member of the European Focus Groups for the revision of the Television without Frontiers Directive and was project leader of the 'Independent study on indicators for media pluralism – Towards a risk-based approach' for the European Commission's Directorate General Information Society and Media (2008-2009).

Ben Van Rompuy, Researcher, Institute for European Studies (IES), Belgium
E-mail: ben.van.rompuy@vub.ac.be

Ben Van Rompuy began working as a legal IES researcher for the project 'Towards i2010: Bargaining for an equitable information society' in 2006. He is presently preparing a doctoral thesis, which examines the application of EU anti-trust rules in the audiovisual and telecommunications sectors. In 2009, he was a visiting research scholar at New York University, Department of Media, Culture and Communication.

Lorna Woods, Professor, City Law School, City University London, UK
E-mail: lorna.woods.1@city.ac.uk

Lorna Woods began her career as a solicitor specialising in commercial law at Simmons and Simmons law firm. Her experience focused on media and telecommunications companies. She then returned to academia to hold a master's degree at Edinburgh University. She has taught at Sheffield University and Essex University and has written widely in the field of audiovisual policy and media regulation. She has been involved in a number of studies commissioned by various NGOs and the European Commission on regulation, self-regulation and co-regulation in the media and new media sectors and has provided evidence to the House of Lords Committee on Communications. She is a member of the Centre for the Freedom of the Media and the Steering Committee for the Interdisciplinary Research Centre on Law Justice and Journalism at City University. She has also contributed to the UNESCO/Council of Europe round table on ethics and the internet.

Project assistant: Anna Kandyla, Research assistant, Hellenic Foundation for European and Foreign Policy
E-mail: akandyla@eliamep.gr

Anna Kandyla holds a Bachelor's degree in Communication and Mass Media from the University of Athens and an MA in Political Behaviour from the University of Essex (UK). She has worked as a researcher at the Amsterdam School of Communications Research (the Netherlands) on a project investigating European news media coverage of the EU's Foreign and Security Policy (2006-2008), and has been a trainee with the Communication Unit of the European Commission's Directorate General Interpretation, as well as research executive at QED Market Research Institute in Athens (Greece).